MISSION

The Yenching Academy of Peking University aims to build bridges between China and the rest of the world through an interdisciplinary master's program in China Studies. This initiative brings together young people who have demonstrated a talent for leadership and innovation. At Yenching, they are immersed in an intensive learning environment where they can explore China and its past, present and future roles in the world. The Academy's goal is to shape new generations of global citizens with a nuanced understanding of China.

The Yenching Academy provides full fellowships to its scholars, and offers them a wide array of interdisciplinary courses on China within broadly defined fields of the Humanities and Social Sciences. Working closely with their academic mentors, the Yenching scholars create their own study paths by choosing courses from six research areas. They also participate in a variety of extracurricular activities organized by the Yenching Academy and designed by scholars themselves. Studying at the Academy is an exceptional opportunity to take part in intercultural exchanges and interdisciplinary learning, and to develop personally and professionally.

"In this era of transition and change, I look to students and staff at the Yenching Academy to act as global citizens and contribute to our efforts to promote peace, development, and human rights."

Ban Ki-moon
Former Secretary-General of the United Nations

ABOUT PEKING UNIVERSITY

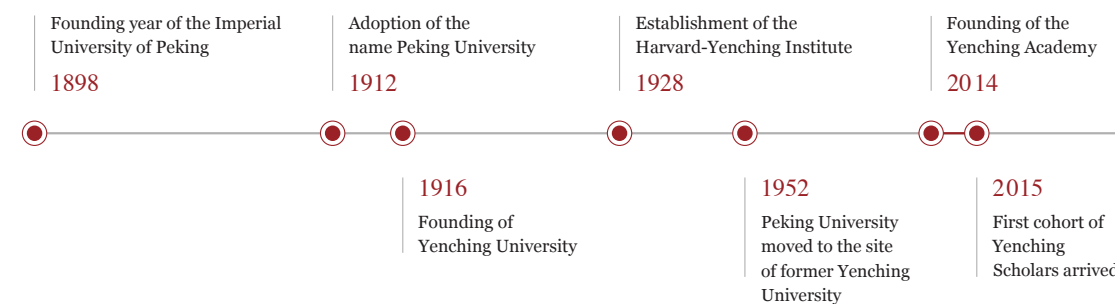

Since its founding in 1898, Peking University has played a central role in China's modern history. The country's first comprehensive institute for higher education during the Guangxu Emperor's Hundred Days of Reform, it has educated many of China's leading scientific, literary, and political figures, including famous writers such as Lu Xun and Shen Congwen, as well as the Nobel Prize-winning scientists Tsung-Dao Lee and Tu Youyou.

During the tumultuous years that followed the Qing Dynasty's collapse, the university became the leading center for intellectual activity in the newly established republic, and in 1919 its students and faculty were the main participants in the May Fourth Movement—a major intellectual and cultural development that reshaped China's social and political life. Peking University has continued to play a leading intellectual role in China's modernization ever since. Widely regarded as China's top leading comprehensive institution of higher learning, Peking University has been ranked number one in each of the Times Higher Education BRICS & Emerging Economies Rankings.

The Yenching Academy's innovative interdisciplinary curriculum and rigorously selected cohort of young scholars from around the world exemplify Peking University's quest for excellence.

YENCHING FELLOWSHIP

The Yenching Academy provides a generous fellowship that includes tuition fees, round-trip travel between scholars' home countries and Beijing, accommodation on campus, and a monthly stipend. The Academy's residential program aims to create a community of enthusiastic, globally oriented young innovators in the heart of Peking University, and encourages them to take fully advantage of this unique opportunity by participating and engaging in campus life.

The mandatory residence period for international students is 12 months. For Chinese students, including students from Hong Kong, Macao and Taiwan, it is 24 months. Coursework is completed during the Fall and Spring semesters, with the summer reserved for research and writing. International students in good academic standing may receive support for up to one additional year in residence to complete and defend their theses. During this second year, students may be eligible for a limited number of teaching, research, or administrative assistantships. The Academy also offers grants to fund selected China Studies research projects.

PROGRAM

The Yenching Academy offers a highly customizable Master's program in China Studies for English speakers with varied levels of Chinese language competency. At the core of the program lies its emphasis on interdisciplinarity and the value it assigns to thinking about China—past, present and future—from both Chinese and international perspectives. It also aims to push the study of China beyond the boundaries of traditionally defined Humanities and Social Science disciplines, and is designed to incorporate the experiences and intellectual training of its diverse student body.

Scholars can choose courses from any of six research areas, one of which they will choose for their theses. A wide range of electives offered by the Academy and other Peking University schools and departments supplements core courses. Our interdisciplinary approach encourages dialogue across academic disciplines, and creates an environment conducive to innovative and fruitful exchanges of ideas.

LANGUAGE STUDY

Chinese language study is an important component of the Yenching learning experience. All incoming international students will be tested to determine Chinese language class placement. Students with high proficiency may be exempt from language classes, provided that they take other courses taught in Chinese.

COURSEWORK

Students take three additional core courses, one of which consists of lectures on various aspects of China Studies by twelve distinguished scholars. The second hallmark course, China in Transition, is a multidisciplinary survey of China's development in the Reform Era. Lectures and discussions take place in the Fall semester; in the Spring semester scholars pursue a field study project under the guidance of a faculty advisor. Fall Field Study is an opportunity for students to travel together to one of China's historic cities for research and exploration.

Electives may be selected from any of the Academy's six research areas. To graduate, scholars must complete at least 30 academic credits, and write and orally defend a Master's thesis. Seventy-five percent of the courses taken by scholars from China must be taught in English.

RESEARCH AREAS

- Economics and Management. These courses explore the current state of China's economy, management practices, and the governance structures of its businesses. They lead students to understand the institutional characteristics and practices that define how business is done in China.
- History and Archaeology. These courses help students gain insight into the pluralism and richness of Chinese history and civilization, and review China's relationships with other major civilizations. Course content ranges from Chinese historiography to methodology and archeological fieldwork practices. The curriculum includes museum and site visits.
- Law and Society. These courses explore Chinese legal and social development. Students gain a better understanding of China's legal system, its major reforms, and the social issues generated by the country's fast paced development. They also become familiar with major concepts that underpin the Chinese legal system and its historical evolution.

- Literature and Culture. These courses focus mainly on a critical and comparative approach to Chinese language and literature, and aim to foster the analytical skills necessary for a competent and independent study of the structures and aesthetics of Chinese language and cultural expressions. They familiarize students with advanced theories and research methods in literature to help them form their own interpretations and understanding of Chinese literary works.
- Philosophy and Religion. These courses approach the philosophical and religious traditions of China from a comparative perspective. They offer opportunities to learn about China's ethics and values and develop a better understanding of China's rich traditions of philosophical and ideological inquiry.
- Politics and International Relations. These courses focus on Chinese perspectives on public and foreign policy. They provide students with a structured knowledge of the Chinese political system, governance model, and policy building process, as well as the analytical and theoretical tools to analyze China's behavior in international relations.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT

Throughout their time at the Yenching Academy, scholars have opportunities to explore various interests and identify potential career options. The Career Development Service strives to enhance Yenching scholars' career prospects and help them improve their academic and professional skills. Aimed at fostering competitive advantage, the Academy's workshops, one-on-one consultations and seminars assist scholars in planning their careers. Whether scholars have a clear career path in mind or are still in the process of defining one, the Academy offers them guidance through their personal journeys.

Beyond of the formal Career Development Service, scholars receive extensive professional support from the Academy at large. Regardless of their research areas and future plans, the Academy encourages scholars to communicate with their advisors, professors and staff about leadership opportunities that could advance their careers. The Academy also supports scholars' participation in selected international conferences and fora.

RESIDENTIAL LIFE

The collegiate living experience is a defining feature of Yenching scholars' residential lives, and fosters a sense of community by facilitating the exchange of ideas. Scholars benefit from the administrative and pastoral support of residential advisors. Yenching scholars reside in newly renovated single rooms in the Shaoyuan International Student Complex, located at the heart of the Peking University campus, and less than three minutes' walk from the Academy's academic and administrative facilities.

In addition to common rooms and a dedicated library, scholars have access to a wide array of amenities in the immediate vicinity. The Academy is committed to enriching the extracurricular lives of its scholars by providing financial support for student-led initiatives.

CHINA AND THE WORLD: OBSERVATION, ANALYSIS, PROSPECT

The Yenching Academy sponsored the symposium “China and the World: Observation, Analysis, Prospect” from December 12 to 14, 2016, as a forum for the discussion of questions such as “How do we evaluate the meaning of culture in a current global situation where many humanistic and cultural values have been marginalized?” and “What is the future of humanities and education?” Participants of this conference included prestigious Chinese scholars of the humanities, as well as distinguished scholars from abroad. The event served as a platform for an intelligent, open, and candid dialogue, and drew on participants’ personal experiences, observations and analysis.

CHINA'S JOURNEY IN A GLOBAL FUTURE

YENCHING GLOBAL SYMPOSIUM

The Academy's flagship event, the Yenching Global Symposium, is one of the most selective conferences in China, and is quickly becoming one of the world's most competitive and highly anticipated conferences. The inaugural Symposium in 2016, with an acceptance rate of 3 percent, received more than 1800 applications from over 130 countries, and included Rhodes Scholars, Marshall Scholars, Gates Cambridge Scholars, Fulbright Scholars and participants from other major fellowships and leading institutions.

In 2018, the third annual Symposium received more than 4000 applications and selected 80 outstanding delegates representing 40 nationalities. Held on Peking University's historic campus on April 12th–15th, the third annual Symposium with the theme “Renaissance: China's Journey in a Global Future”, was a four-day event including keynote speakers, panels of academics and practitioners, hands-on activities, site visits, and cultural immersion programming. In a rapidly shifting global arena, “Renaissance” was an exploration of China's multi-faceted revival.

The fourth Symposium, with the theme “Wömen: Retelling the China Stories”, takes place on March 29th–31st, 2019 and aims to identify key components of the global “China stories” and interpret them through a gendered lens.

MEDIA APPEARANCES

February 29, 2016, China Daily published an article titled “Scholars getting the big picture of China” introducing the program, the 2015 Yenching Scholars and former Associate Dean of the Academy, John Holden.

“Yenching Academy at Peking University is open to talent from around the world, and is working to ensure that its students explore every aspect of China,” said John Holden, former Associate Dean to the Academy.

“The program does not constrain students to a certain path of study,” he said. “Its course offering is like a menu for students to select from according to their own needs.”

Positioned at Peking University, Yenching Academy attracts global top talents and offers a full scholarship that is international in scope. Yenching Academy is also a part of an effort to “build a world-class university”, an urgent issue facing Chinese higher education.

Yenching Academy’s “China Studies” curriculum provides an overview of China’s traditions and culture and explores China’s current economic and social issues. This curriculum is designed to enhance China’s cultural competitiveness and strives to increase China’s presence in the international discourse rights.

While China has a rich 5,000-year-old history, and the Yenching Academy utilizes the most modern research paradigms and an internationalized academic language in its studies, which in turn enables Chinese traditional culture to play a leading role in today’s prosperous but turbulent world.

From October 8 to 12, 2016, Guangming Daily published a series of three articles on Yenching Academy’s initiative to enhance communication between China and the world.

In May 2017, the CCTV program Panview interviewed five Yenching Scholars from BRI countries, including Harriet Kariuki (Kenya, Harvard University), Nishat Kazmi (Pakistan, Maastricht University), Ravi Prasad (United Kingdom, University of Cambridge), Maximilian Romer (Germany, University of Leiden), and Grzegorz Stec (Poland, University of Oxford). The scholars shared their understanding of the Belt and Road Initiative and its influence on their homeland, and their own lives.

On July 9, 2018, CCTV News aired a special program entitled “Studying in China. Peking University and Tsinghua University: Fostering elites to better communicate China to the world”.

As one of the best cross-cultural training establishments, Yenching Academy has already said goodbye to its second class of graduates. At its founding, the goal of this Master’s program was clear: to develop top talents who can communicate with both China and the world. From core courses, lectures, interdisciplinary academic research to field research, Yenching Academy is a platform for students from all over the world to gain a better understand China.

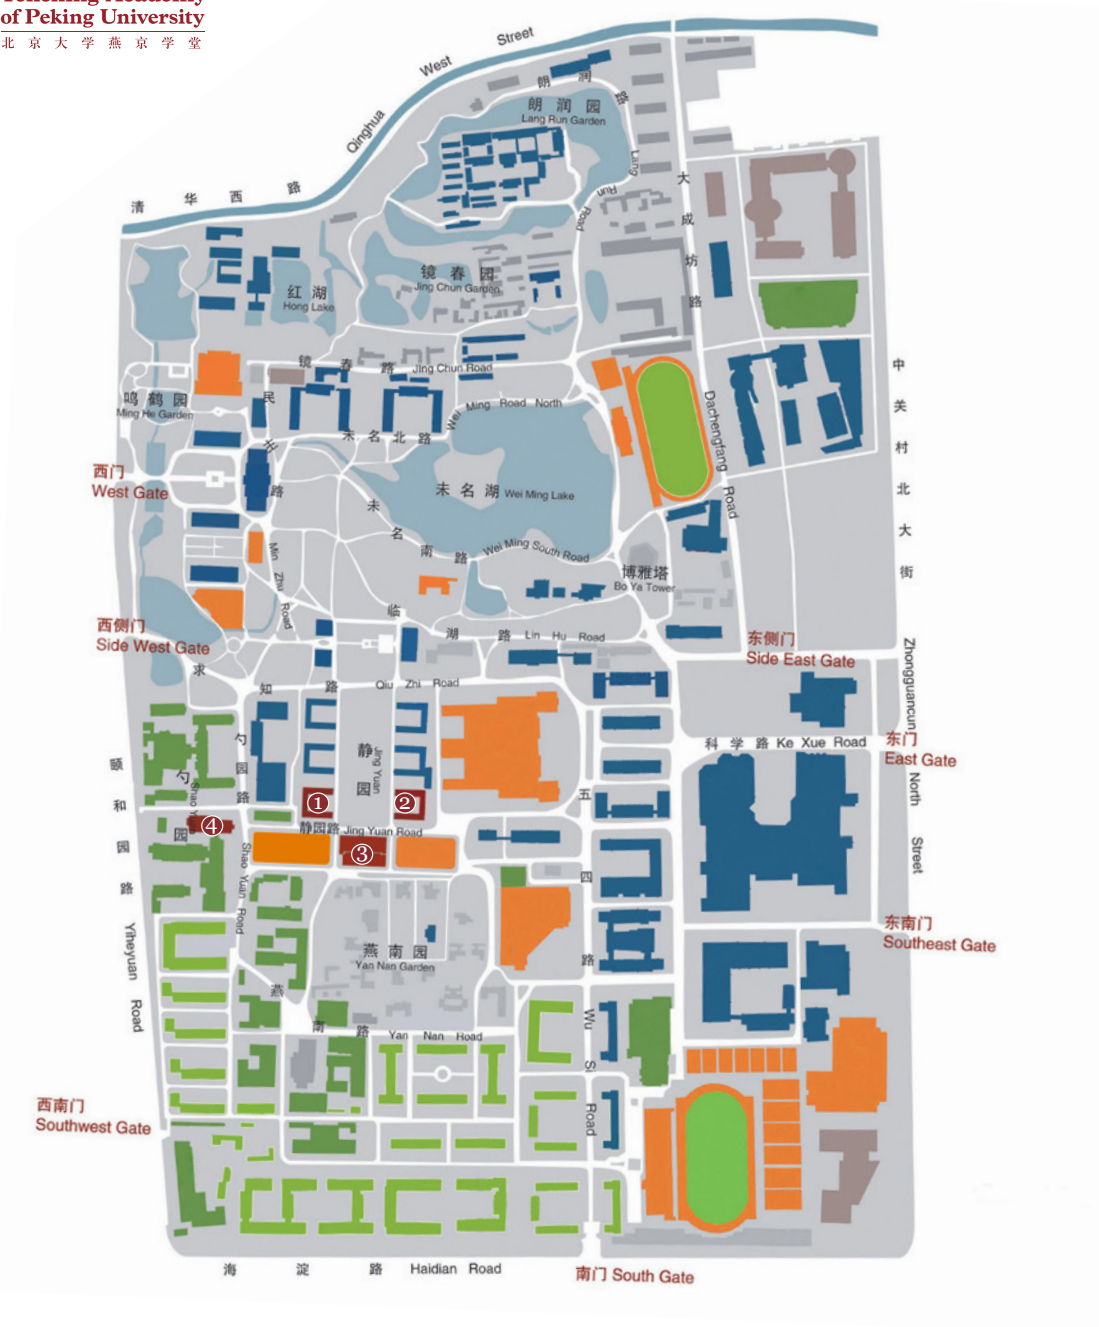

David Moser, Associate Dean of the Yenching Academy of Peking University, said “The focus of this Master’s program is ‘China Studies,’ with the goal of addressing China’s challenges. The students we cultivate from around the world will be able to study Chinese issues with the spirit of seeking truth from facts.”
