AGREEMENT

between the Laboratory of Catalysis and Spectrochemistry, of the National High School of Ingeneurs, University of Caen, Caen, FRANCE and the Group of IR Spectroscopy, Dept. of Photonics, Faculty of Physics of St.Petersburg State University, RUSSIA

about the collaboration in 2008-2011 for common studies on the subject

'Study of surface species by means of IR spectroscopy'

The present agreement is based on the experience of both the sides in the spectroscopic studies of adsorbed molecules and surface species on oxide adsorbents and zeolites, in particular.

The aims of the present agreement are:

- to carry out experimental and theoretical studies in the above mentioned field;
- to discuss the results obtained, to exchange the information in the field of collaboration;
- to exchange the equipment, materials and samples for common studies;
- to publish and to present the results of common studies to the conferences;
- to promote mutual visits and student exchange.

The collaboration will be carried on according to the co-ordinated program adopted by both laboratories.

The number and the names of participants will be determined in the program. Both sides may work in contact with other scientific or industrial organisations.

The financial support will be provided by both sides from the independent sources, the expedience of expenses will be determined by each side independently, no special financing required.

The sides may at mutual consent introduce any changes and additions or attract other participants for more effective collaboration.

The present document is made in two copies.
